MARIANNE MARSTRAND is the Executive Director of the Global Peace Initiative of Women (GPIW), an international NGO under the stewardship of women spiritual leaders. Over the past 15 years, she has helped organise many gatherings around the world on peacebuilding, youth leadership, ecology, compassionate economics, and the sacred feminine – themes that are close to her heart. Prior to her work with GPIW, she served as Project Coordinator for Karma Thegsum Tashi Gomang in Crestone, Colorado under the auspices of His Highness, the Gyalwa Karmapa. She deeply believes that the world needs the feminine wisdom to reawaken to our interconnectedness and the honouring of the sacredness of the Earth and reverence for all of life. Marianne resides in New York City and is a student of Sufi mystic, Llewellyn Vaughan-Lee. www.gpiw.org

VICKI J. MCCOY is an organisational development and communications consultant and the president of McCoy Communications & Training, LLC, in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. She has an insider's perspective on the functioning of government from her early career leading communications programmes in three US government agencies. As a press officer during the Panama Canal Treaty negotiations, she realised that the development of self-aware organisations and individuals was key to effective communication and the peaceful settlement of disputes. This led her to personally explore the subjects of self-awareness and team-building and to attain the qualifications to help others. Ms McCoy is the cocreator of a comprehensive development programme called 'Raising the Bar: Empowering Greatness in Individuals and Teams' and a registered neutral (mediator) in the State of Georgia. She was born in the United States, but raised in the Republic of Panama.
